

Through the course of our journey in faith together, we make the following covenant with one another and with God:

We commit to honestly and thoughtfully engage in our own faith journeys while witnessing to the journeys of others. We will keep our hearts open to each other, honoring and learning from our differences while celebrating all that connects us.

We promise to participate fully in the group with gratitude for one another. We strive to be warm, joyful, and kind, avoiding judgement and honoring each other's beliefs and questions.

We accept the challenge of building a community rooted in these relationships of love. In acknowledgement that we are all human, we seek to be forgiving when this covenant is broken. We commit to honestly engaging each other in a spirit of love as we seek to build this community together.

In faith that our spirits will be enlivened by this time and our lives enriched by these relationships, we band together for this leg of our life-long journey, seeking the mystery of God and supporting one another along the way.